

Are you interested in working for social change?

Union Summer is a paid summer internship for people interested in the labor movement. Participants spend an exciting six weeks, from June 25-August 3, working full-time and hands-on with different campaigns.

The program is broken up into 3 main components: education, actions, and on the job training. An average week may be:

Tuesday: Attend a rally at the airport to support striking flight attendants, followed by 4 hours registering people to vote at a farmers market.

Wednesday: 8 hours of phone calls to union members reminding them to turn in their ballot for their union.

Thursday: Filing for the office manager, running to the post office, and attending a lobbying meeting with your supervisor and the Mayor.

Friday: Education day. 8 hours in the classroom learning about the history of the labor and social justice movements in the Pacific Northwest.

Saturday: 4 hours doing house visits in 80-degree weather talking to union members about local politics and elections.

The positions are based in and around Seattle and are paid $16/hour.

Application deadline is May 17. Apply today!

Apply at wslc.org/UnionSummer

For more information, email: unionsummer@wslc.org

